Toronto Child and Family Network

The Toronto Child and Family Network plans, coordinates and promotes the broad range of services for children from birth to 12 years of age and their families. The Toronto Child and Family Network is a partnership between a cross-section of agencies and organizations who share the same goal of promoting positive outcomes for new and expectant parents, children and families in Toronto.

Building on the success of the Best Start Network, the Toronto Child and Family Network will contribute to services by:

- Enhancing community engagement at the local and system level
- Organizing and integrating services with the goal of improved outcomes for children
- Aligning provincial, municipal and community planning, policies, processes and programs.

Toronto Child and Family Network

A group of leaders from various sectors form a Steering Committee, which will determine the strategic directions of the Network. Their work will be informed through community-based/sectoral subcommittees who will plan and advise the Steering Committee on the development of a high-quality, accessible and comprehensive system of services for children and their families. The sectoral subcommittees are as follows:

- Health
- Early Learning and Care
- Early Identification and Intervention
- Family Support
- Aboriginal Advisory
- French Language Advisory
